“ *So many people remember Mrs. Joy as the nurse at the hospital there in West Point. I remember when, as a group of young people from Bible Baptist Church, we would visit the hospital patients, Mrs. Joy would get us to sing to her, as well, at the Nurses Station. She always wanted us to sing "Neath the Old Olive Trees." We would stand our book on the Nurses Station bar and sing to her, while she sat beaming up at us.
I can see her still. God bless you all in your loss.*

“ Miss Joy and I had something in common, she liked to polish shoes and I do also. We had a conversation about this several years ago at First Baptist Church one Wednesday night. She will be missed. She had a loving and caring family.
